Mr Clark;

Thank you for providing the documentation and explanations. The erroneous posting has been removed and this letter will be placed online.

The record received in 2005 and the dated entries, incorrect MOS listings when compared to your provided documents were very confusing. Units stated in the record were not as stated on your documents. When time/place of service, etc. is not annotated correctly on the Soldier's records, it becomes a problem. Even after requesting citations and certificates from NPRC, none were received. We did find out today that Recondo school was one of the few NOT to have a standardized form for graduation – negating the suspicion of a purchased reprint, so prominent in cases right now.

Dating websites are a haven for phonies. We get at least a report a week from someone checking to see if the person is legit or not – men and woman. Any military claims are now often checked - and that is how you were brought to our attention more than once over the years.

We are truly sorry for having listed you in error. We have spent several hours today reviewing the records once again in comparison to your documentation with former Army Rangers and other officers so that the mistake will never be repeated.

Respectfully,

[signed]

Mary Schantag
